

Mark R. Brown
Newton D. Baker/Baker and Hostetler Chair of Law
Capital University Law School

Constitutional law expert, Mark Brown is Capital's Newton D. Baker/Baker and Hostetler Chair of Law. He joined the faculty in 2003 and teaches constitutional law and constitutional litigation. He has taught at several other law schools, including the University of Illinois, Stetson University, Florida State University and Ohio State University. Following his graduation from the University of Louisville School of Law, Professor Brown earned his LL.M. at the University of Illinois. He clerked for the Honorable Harry W. Wellford of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and later was a Judicial Fellow at the Supreme Court of the United States.

Professor Brown is a co-author of the book, Constitutional Litigation Under § 1983. He also has authored several articles addressing various constitutional issues, including religion, elections, parents' rights, gender discrimination and government's financial liability for the wrongs it inflicts. His articles have appeared in such leading law journals as the Temple Law Review, Tulane Law Review, University of Illinois Law Review and Cornell Law Review.

For 18 years, he was a cooperating attorney with the ACLU Foundation of Florida, Inc. and has litigated many pro bono cases for various organizations, including the ACLU, NAACP, Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and International People's Democratic Uhuru Movement.

Professor Brown is a former chair of the AALS Section on Civil Rights and the ABA Litigation Section's Subcommittee on Section 1983 Litigation.